

PORT ARTHUR A MASS OF RUINS

Japanese Cannon Have Played Havoc with the Best of Czar's Domains.

THE BOMBARDMENT WAS EFFECTIVE

All the Stores in One Block of New Town Were Totally Destroyed, While the Battleships Also Suffered.

Shanghai, March 17.—Port Arthur was practically laid in ruins by the bombardment by Admiral Togo's squadron on March 10 and 12. Scarcely a building was left standing in the main street of the new part of the city and hardly a residence was untouched. The loss of life was much greater than was reported. This information was gained from the crew of the Selretad, one of three Norwegian steamers which the Russians allowed to leave Port Arthur recently. The captains of the vessels were before their departure taken before the port Admiral and made to swear they would tell nothing of the occurrences of the preceding days, but the crews are willing to talk, and their stories all agree. The other ships released are the Argo and the Brand. Members of the crews said:

Shell Kills Nineteen. "During the last bombardment the Argo lay alongside the Retvisan in the harbor. One shell from a Japanese warship fell on the deck of the battleship and exploded, killing nineteen officers and men. The crews of merchant ships in the harbor deserted and fled toward the promontory.

"The greatest damage was done in the new town, where the shells played such havoc that practically all shops and business buildings in the main street were demolished. Scarcely a residence is left untouched. The Japanese fire was marvellously accurate. The inhabitants were terror stricken. Many attempted to construct rude bomb-proof cellars.

Sightseers Are Slain. "A shell fell among a crowd of curious sightseers gathered at a point of vantage gazing out to sea at the attacking fleet. It killed twenty-five of them. Three government clerks were killed while hurrying from the port Admiral's office.

"The most elevated fort at the entrance of the harbor was the most seriously damaged. There was one tremendous explosion which civilians attributed to the blowing up of the powder magazine, but whether their surmise is correct is not known, as the Russian authorities forbade that any inquiries be answered.

Sets Cruiser on Fire. "A cruiser lying at anchor a cable's length from the Retvisan was struck on the water line and set on fire. Eighty persons on board of her perished."

The day after the bombardment five Russian warships left the harbor to scout for the Japanese fleet. It was rumored that twenty-five Japanese vessels were on the way to Port Arthur to deliver what would probably have been the last attack on the doomed fortress. In consequence of this there was a panic in the town which was not allayed by the return of the scouting vessels reporting the coast clear. Dash for Vladivostok.

Reports on the damaged warships are being carried out with all possible speed, but the Retvisan and the Cesarevitch are in a hopeless condition. The Norwegians insist that when they left, the Russian fleet had sailed, intending to make a dash for Vladivostok, leaving in the harbor only the Retvisan, the Cesarevitch and the Sevastopol. The latter is in drydock, seriously damaged by two large shells. When the Norwegians left the only other vessels in the harbor were the volunteer fleet steamer Kazan Edouard Barl and four smaller Russian steamships, including two merchantmen, one whaler and the Russian hospital ship Mongolia, which was struck by shells, killing six men. The docks are believed to have been severely injured by the deliberate shell fire of the Japanese.

MISSIONARIES REFUSE TO LEAVE THEIR POSTS

Decline Offer of American Warships to Carry Their Families to Places of Safety.

Washington, March 17.—United States Minister Allen has cabled the state department from Seoul that the Cincinnati has arrived at Chemulpo with twenty-three Americans from Chinnampo.

The minister announced that the missionaries in the neighborhood of Pingyang had refused to send their women and children aboard the Cincinnati, where they could be taken to a place of safety.

The attitude of the missionaries is one familiar to the state department in connection with oriental troubles. It has used every effort by counsel and advice, and by extending the use of naval vessels, to induce these zealous people to temporarily repair to some place of safety, but often in vain, as in this case.

The department has made it clear to the missionary representatives in this country that in the case of actual war like this it cannot undertake to employ the United States army and navy in expeditions into the interior of a country which is the scene of war.

If the missionaries remain after a proper warning the United States government cannot remove them and they must take their chances with other civilians.

FIRE IN WOLVERINE CAPITOL

Michigan Fares Better Than Did Iowa and Wisconsin.

Lansing, Mich., March 17.—Not to be behind its sister states in the matter of capitol fires, Michigan had her Wednesday. Iowa and Wisconsin lost their statehouses, but Michigan's was saved by prompt action following discovery of the blaze. A belated state officer was hurrying out of the building for his midday meal when he discovered that the governor's private office was in flames. He lost no time in giving an alarm and the prompt arrival of firemen confined the blaze to the executive office. The fire had a good start, but the damage was for the most part confined to the furnishings in the governor's quarters.

REPUBLICS IN MUCH FEAR OF Being Annexed by the United States, Have Formed an Alliance Against Move.

FIVE SIGNERS TO THE PACT NOW

Brazil, Chili, Bolivia and Ecuador Join with the Original of the Project To Prevent the Move.

New Orleans, La., March 17.—According to authentic advices received here, a powerful protective alliance has been formed by Brazil, Ecuador, Argentina, Chili and Bolivia, to guard against absorption by the United States. Those countries believe that they will eventually be compelled to accept annexation to America on a plan similar to the American recognition of the new republic of Panama. The belief prevails throughout Brazil and Argentina that in the event of a revolution in either republic President Roosevelt will intervene and recognize the new republics.

nize the revolutionists, thus paving the way for annexation.

Gives $100,000 to Colombia. It is also reported that President Zelaya of Nicaragua has forwarded a check for $100,000 to President Marroquin of Colombia to assist that country in joining the South American coalition. The alliance was first discussed last year, when it was urged that the South American republics should belong to the United States, while Peru was considering the advisability during the recent revolution in that country of appealing to President Roosevelt to establish a protectorate in Peru.

Dr. C. F. Z. Caracristi, the noted South and Central American authority, stated that the alliance is a fact, but no republic in the compact will countenance any alliance with a foreign power in opposition to the United States.

SOUTHERN CONGRESSMAN DEFENDER OF THE SOUTH

Plays the Northern Mobs and Their Treatment of Women and Children--Compares North and South.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.) Washington, March 17.—"Unlike the people of the North, the people of the South do not out with a torch in one hand and a gun in the other, and pointing the gun at defenseless women and children, shoot them as they flee for their lives." This Mr. Spright of Mississippi said in the House of Representatives in a speech in which he said he wanted to vindicate the people of the South of the charge of barbarism. He said "such race prejudice finds no place in southern hearts," referring to lynchings in the North at Danville, Ill.; Springfield, Ohio, and in New York City, where he said in 1900 the innocent had been pursued to avenge the crime of the guilty.

One Crime Deserves Lynching. Mr. Spright said he was opposed to violence as a "general proposition."

Danger in Social Equality. Mr. Spright spoke of the attempt of certain "white persons" to put the negro on a social equality with themselves, and, referring to the occasion when Booker Washington dined at the White House with President Roosevelt, said that "this one incident had done more to inflame the passions of the negro and give him a perverted idea of his importance and his near approach to social equality than anything that had been done for the last ten years." He said Booker Washington had sat down to dinner with the president "as graciously as if he had been the governor of New York." He was, he continued, sorry that Mr. Washington did not have more sense and self-respect than to accept the invitation. "The more the negroes are put on a social equality," he vigorously asserted, "the more dangerous becomes their position, and the surer death by violence will overtake them sooner or later."

MANY RELIGIONS CLAIM THE SAINT

PATRON OF THE EMERALD ISLE IS DISCUSSED.

VIEWS OF THE DIFFERENT

Authorities on His Denominational Belief—Was a Catholic Beyond Doubt.

If St. Patrick were exhumed would there be found a Scotch plaid or a Roman toga wrapped about him, or would there be a shillalah of a French rapier by his side? Scotland, Ireland, France and Rome claim the good saint for a citizen, and as to his religion, poor, good, saint, he might have been almost anything.

Possession is nine points in the law, and Catholics having sainted him and placed him in their calendar, have first claim. Authority can be found, however, for associating him with Baptists, Presbyterians, several kinds of unorthodox faiths, and with plain, earnest Christians. He even has been claimed by Methodists. One divine of that denomination said recently that he was as much Methodist as Catholic, since the two religions of Methodism and Catholicism were not established until some centuries later than St. Patrick's day.

Now, of what faith was good Saint Patrick? Here is what many authorities say on the subject.

"St. Patrick was a Frenchman, says one student. "He was born in France and went to Ireland as a missionary. Since all his work was done in the little island it is not strange that the Irish should claim him. But the claim of the Methodists is ridiculous. The Methodist religion was founded as everyone knows only a hundred years ago, by John Wesley, and that was hundreds of years after the death of St. Patrick. The idea of the Catholics is evident in regard to the nationality and religion of St. Patrick," said Archbishop Messmer. "He was born an Irishman and a good Catholic, or he would not be in our calendar of saints. There are dozens of historical authorities to confirm the belief."

"His name was Patricius before he was sainted by the Irish," "That would indicate that he was of Roman origin, and I believe that it is generally accepted that he was a Roman. As to his faith, he was a missionary of the Roman faith, but it is well known that the Roman church of that time differed widely from the Roman see. St. Patrick lived in what was known as the Golden Age of Ireland, when the church of Ireland sent out its own missionaries even as far as Switzerland. Yes, I suppose, he would be called a Roman Catholic, but as there is no orthodoxy in the Catholic church it does not mean what the Roman Catholic of today does."

A Jewish authority states that St. Patrick was an Irishman and a Catholic, if there ever was one. "You can tell that by the name," he said. "Just read the legends about the dragon he killed and the snakes he chased out of the island, and you will be convinced that he was both Irish and a Catholic."

St. Patrick was not a Roman Catholic though he was a Christian missionary," says a congregational authority. England and Ireland had two distinct forms of Christianity. The earliest with which St. Patrick was identified, was from the Isle of Iona, antedating the establishment of the Roman Catholic religion by several centuries. The barbarians overran England, and well might exterminate the old Christianity before the advent of the Romans and St. Augustine. St. Patrick was a Christian, but I do not think we could well call him a Catholic under the circumstances. As to his nationality, that is a mooted question which I believe will never be satisfactorily settled, for there is no positive proof as to whether he was born in Scotland or in France. There are legends to uphold both claims."

"He was a presbyter of the established church of Scotland," is another divine view. "He went over to Ireland, was offered a saintship, and like former Rector Schultz of this city, renounced his religion for the honor of office."

Another Presbyterian divine says "St. Patrick was a good Scotch Presbyterian of the stern, old type. "He was born on the banks of the Clyde," he said, "and his father was a deacon in the Presbyterian church. When the saint was a boy he fell into bad hands and was carried away to Ireland. There he became a missionary among the natives. There was never any question as to his being a good Scotch Presbyterian until the Irish Catholic church sainted and claimed him."

"According to some of his teachings St. Patrick would make a pretty good Baptist," says a Baptist authority. "He demanded regeneration, conversion before baptism, and refused to baptize babies. This is in direct opposition to the Catholic faith of today, so St. Patrick wasn't a good Catholic. As to his nationality, there is so much controversy on the point that I would not speak authoritatively, but I believe that he was born at Killybegs near Dumbarton on one of the estuaries of the Clyde, in Scotland. He was captured by pirates, the legend runs, and carried to Ireland. Later he visited the continent of Europe, and was ordained in the Catholic church in France."

MRS. WEED TALKS ABOUT MORMONS

Says Utah Cult Claims George Washington as One of Its Divinities.

Modern Mormonism was discussed before an interested audience at the Court Street M. E. church parlors last evening by Mrs. Maria Weed of Chicago. The address was given under the auspices of the International Committee of Women of New York and of the W. C. T. U. A residence of three years in Salt Lake City, with six months' study of the faith under a prominent Mormon, enables her to speak with authority. The campaign was originally started for the purpose of influencing the United States senate to refuse to send Senator-elect Red Smoot of Utah. It is continued with the hope of having an amendment made to the constitution, prohibiting polygamy under whatever guise.

Legislation Only Remedy The speaker did not declare that Smoot was a polygamist in practice, but her argument was that as he had announced his faith in the Mormon church, he will die a polygamist at heart, if he will not in deed. All Mormons, she stated, believe in polygamy and it is commonly accepted that a man who dies with a single wife cannot enter heaven. Legislation was the only remedy. The Mormon church controls the vote of every member and the support to the party in power results in granting to them the privileges which they now enjoy.

A Polyglot Religion The speaker stated that Mormonism is a weak imitation of Christianity, because that is popular; plus theosophy because that also attracts popular attention; plus every sad, fallacy, "ology" or "ism" prevalent in the world of so-called new thought. George Washington is regarded by the Mormons as a member of their faith, because of their belief in proxy-baptism to the dead. They claim that George Washington has been taken into the church by proxy by a judge in Springfield, Ill. They made him a good orthodox Mormon. He has been married by proxy many times to Mormon women who use the ordinary Mormon marriage ceremony. At the death of the wives the children will be credited to the eternal account of George Washington, who is already a God of the church, as is Adam, Joseph Smith and Brigham Young or any other Mormon whose list of descendants entitles them to the questionable honor of deification.

WOODMEN PLAN FOR THE PICNIC

The Annual Gathering Will Be Held in Madison During the Coming Spring.

A delegation of Janesville Woodmen will attend a convention of the Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois Woodmen Picnic association in Madison April 19, which convention will formally determine the date of the annual Woodmen picnic to be held this year in Madison during the first week in June and will determine the place at which the annual picnic of 1905 will be held.

Janesville will not get the 1905 picnic, having entertained the gathering last summer (?), but will wait for a few years, until the picnic has been distributed among some of the cities of northern Illinois.

At Madison last night the local committee of 15 called the convention for April 19 and appointed a number of local picnic committee as follows: Finance—C. E. Jewett, W. L. Dowling and R. N. Quale.

Solicitation—Frank Alford, W. J. Hobbs and J. S. Grady.

Entertainment—Mayor Groves and Y. L. Gilbert.

Advertising—Alderman George Kroncke, chairman.

Decorating—E. H. Nickerson, chairman.

Feeding of bands—Charles Abbott and F. E. Legler.

Prize drills—Dr. T. W. Evans.

Marshal of the day—Col. George H. Joachim.

Music—M. R. Morrison and F. M. Schlimgen.

At the mammoth picnic in June at least 35,000 strangers will invade the Capital city. When the last picnic was held there, in 1900, some 30,000 visitors attended. At that time $1,700 was subscribed by the business men of Madison but 20 per cent was returned. From the assurances already received that the attendance this year will be considerably larger, fully $1,700 will be needed to cover all expenses. The sub-committee chosen to make arrangements will push details vigorously.

SPRING COMES ON THE NEXT SUNDAY

This Is the Official Ending of Winter, Broken Backbone or Not—Government Report.

Spring's official opening will take place next Sunday afternoon at 57 minutes and 58 seconds after six o'clock.

This exact time, known to almanacs as the vernal equinox, or the time when the sun, on its northward journey, crosses the equator, has been figured out by Lieutenant W. J. Wilson of the United States hydrographic office and was made public yesterday.

"The sun crosses the line," says Lieutenant Wilson, "exactly at noon, March 21, at Greenwich, and in order to determine the second by Chicago, or central standard, time, requires considerable figuring. By calculation I have decided the exact second when the sun crosses the equator for the first time this year. After this change we may expect real spring weather."

The return touch of winter with which Janesville is being visited is to show no abatement for some days, according to the predictions of Prof. Cox. More snow may be expected, or, if that fails, another fall of rain, with temperature below the freezing point and brisk, chilly winds from the northeast. Fair, with rain or snow possible, is the prediction for today.

WEEKLY LETTER ON THE STOCK

What Is Doing on the Chicago Market, and the Prices Cattle Bring Today.

Chicago, Ill., March 16.—Cattle.—Receipts of cattle so far this week show very little change from same time last week but there were too many for the demand. The best grades sold today about steady but the medium kinds, those composing the bulk of the receipts and such as sold between $1.25 and $1.75, were 10c to 15c lower. The poorer kinds, those coming into competition with feeders sold about steady, as inquiry was a little keener from the country and many of the warmed-up cattle are being taken out to be matured and put on our market two to three months hence. Butcher stock sold fairly well, particularly the better class of stuff, but there was some decline on all other grades. It looks as if our receipts would continue rather liberal for the balance of this month but after the first of April we look for a decrease in receipts and higher prices.

Hogs.—Receipts of hogs this week have increased about 30,000 over same time last week and we have had some decline in consequence, prices today being 10c to 15c below a week ago today. Our market started out slowly, this morning, with regular buyers bidding 5c to 10c lower, although we were able to dispose of our early holding to scalpers at fully steady prices. Those arriving later we had to sell at the decline noted, particularly on heavy weights, the lighter weights going more readily at less decline. Light hogs sold mostly today from $5.25 to $5.40, packing grades $5.40 to $5.50 and $5.55. While there are probably more hogs in the country than a year ago, at this time, prices are also over $1.50 below that time and while we look for about enough hogs to supply the demand we are more inclined to believe we will see some advance rather than a decline in prices.

Sheep.—Best sheep today sold strong to 10c higher with best lambs up to $5.75. The common grades were slow sale at weak to 10c lower prices. Good feeding lambs are going out right around 5c and the common kinds down as low as 4c.

NEWS LETTER OF UNIVERSITY LIFE

WHAT IS ACCOMPLISHED AT MADISON THIS WEEK.

A SPECIAL LAW LECTURER

Crows Are Being Weeded Out—Coach Kilpatrick Makes a Strong Bluff.

Special advantages are being provided in the University of Wisconsin law school to attract young men of the state of Illinois who expect to practice the legal profession in their own state. Prof. Levi H. Fuller, the well known and successful Chicago attorney and professor of law at Northwestern university, has been secured to deliver a special course of lectures in Illinois Pleadings and Practice. Since the death of Dean Edward E. Bryant there has been no authority on Illinois code practice in the Wisconsin law school faculty and Professor Fuller is secured to fill the gap in the staff of instruction.

Some harsh criticism was passed upon the university authorities for hiring an Illinois attorney to lecture for the particular benefit of students who intend to practice in Illinois and not Wisconsin, to educate professional men for Illinois at the expense of Wisconsin. These criticisms have been answered by referring to the ability of Professor Fuller as an educator in the law and by saying that the Illinois law and the rules and precedents laid down by the Illinois courts are so valuable in the law that students who expect to practice in Wisconsin to be successful must have knowledge of Illinois pleadings and practice as taught by Professor Fuller.

Working at Squad Coach Andy O'Dea of the crew department of the university of Wisconsin has weeded out and cut down the squad of over 100 candidates for the varsity and freshman eight-oared crews and the varsity "four" until he now is training only 26 candidates in the freshman squad and less than a score in the varsity squad. The material retained in quarters is the finest set of young oarsmen ever assembled at Madison and if the subscriptions for cash are large and numerous enough to take the Badgers across in June the west is assured to be honorably represented in the annual eastern intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie. The freshman candidates are the following:

Anderson, Berto, Bechtem, Cary, Davis, Draper, Ernst, Foster, Gorman, Hutton, Heyroth, Hine, Lueders, Larson, Leslie, Lea, McComb, Lorenz, Metson, Nye, Palmer, Rosen, Ryder, Robbins, Stone and Wallbridge.

No arrangement has been effected with the Duluth Boat club crew for a race to take place of that planned with the Cornell, N. Y., university crew, which decided not to come west. Unless a desirable arrangement be made soon the aquatic feature of the university semi-centennial jubilee celebration program will be abandoned. As soon as the weather permits Coach O'Dea will take the Yahara river for the first real shell work.

Kilpatrick's Bluff "I will write to the authorities at the university of Minnesota and the university of Iowa and request that an inquiry be made into the charges made by the student papers of these two institutions that I neglect and disregard agreements with them for athletic contests and break contracts at will."

This is the declaration of Graduate Manager Charles H. Kilpatrick for the university of Wisconsin when shown the articles from the Minnesota and Iowa managements charging that he broke contracts "when the spirit moved him." Disregarded agreements and neglected correspondence, Mr. Kilpatrick is indignant. He says he never violated a contract in his life, nor did he change or break an agreement, and as to correspondence, he says he caused the athletic association to hire George R. Kenchle at $50 a month as assistant manager, because he, Mr. Kilpatrick, was undermining his health sitting up until after midnight answering correspondence. The immediate cause of the bad feeling seems to be that Mr. Kilpatrick out of the poverty of the Badger athletic association, offers Minnesota a guarantee of only $75 for the baseball game scheduled here May 19. Mr. Kilpatrick says the Gophers are going on a trip at that time and $75, although it is a small sum considering the expenses of travel, is a fair proportionate sum considering the number of games to be played on the trip.

"We don't care to go to Minneapolis to play," said Mr. Kilpatrick. "We have always met dirty treatment there. We make our offer of $75 modestly and don't care much whether the Gophers take us up or not."

Mr. Kilpatrick challenges the managements of either Minnesota or Iowa to produce a signed contract of his making that has not been kept inviolate.

BIG AUDIENCE SEES SOTHERN

And Cecelia Loftus in the Big Production of Justin McCarthy's "The Proud Prince"

With the slow, halting tread peculiar to persons who have been moved deeply by some drama or tragedy in real life and are unable to shake off the conflicting impressions and emotions that fight for mastery—yet never gain an issue—the great audience left the Myers theatre last evening. The production was not of that order which can be dismissed with a few words of approval or condemnation at the theatre door. All might have agreed that Sothern was a great actor and Cecelia Loftus a great actress, and that "The Proud Prince" was a remarkable play—with beautiful lines, sumptuously staged, and artistically performed. Few could have honestly said on the moment whether or not they liked it and would hope to see more such dramas in coming years, and if not why not.

Tension Was Sustained No element of comedy to relieve the tension of the audience as climax follows climax with extraordinary rapidity, enters into the drama. Once as Diogenes the fool was leaving the sarkist in the third act after his terrible sufferings in the presence of the accusing exiles, something in the manner of his walk provoked a nervous laugh that died half-expressed, showing how eagerly the spectators awaited momentary diversion from the strain of eyes and thoughts, riveted on the main action of the play. This, of course, raises the whole question as to the mission of the drama. Justin McCarthy's play is of absorbing interest. It leaves the spectator in a state of mental exhaustion. It does not amuse or entertain in the sense of furnishing recreation, and may scarcely be said to carry any lesson home. The sonorous phrase from the Magnificat "He hath put down the mighty from their seats" echoes and re-echoes through the lines but it has little personal meaning for the American listener who has no dreams "If I Were King." Sol Smith Russell's comedies were often declared by clergymen to be better than a sermon. The triumph of the humble and meek and the good was the constant text. But such virtues reaped their reward by very human and natural means. It is the unnatural and unreal in "The Proud Prince" that thrills and awes—perhaps convinces—but that is all.

The Modern Theme Gross sin, followed by terrible retribution and final reclamation, seems to be the accepted theme of the present-day playwright. It is not difficult to trace a similarity existing between "The Proud Prince" and Tolstoy's "Resurrection" which was played here by Mary Stone last week. Masterful as "Monna Vanna" is another in the same class. Miss Cecelia Loftus played a role that called for the highest art. In her emotional work as well as in her portrayal of the simple executioner's daughter she fulfilled all expectations. Sothern's virile and impassioned acting in the dual roles of prince and fool in the dual roles of prince and fool was of course almost incomparable, so far, at least, as the local stage is concerned. John Findlay, as the court fool, and Mary Hall, as Lyabetta, played the strongest of the supporting parts.

Perfection of Detail The perfection of detail was one of the most remarkable features of the production. In the play itself Moorish slaves swept in like a wind from the desert. The swiftness with which they accomplished their dire errand appealed to the eye much the same as the walls and groans from the orchestra pit. The strange, weird music was exceedingly difficult and the orchestra leader complimented Prof. Lake and his musicians very highly for the way they handled it. At Rockford night before last it was nearly three o'clock before the scenery was loaded in the cars. Mr. Schwartz had everything in place at 1:30. Stage Manager Bryan also expressed himself as surprised at the efficient manner in which the scenery was handled on the stage.

Horse Lane? Perhaps we can help him. You might bring him in.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday March 17, 1864.—A fine dwelling house for sale. It will be seen by our new advertisements that the dwelling house of Charles Holt on Jackson street, is offered for sale. There is not a better or more desirable piece of property in the market than this. Well located, built in the very best manner, surrounded by everything desirable, on an eight rods square lot, this opportunity to purchase a place will do well to ascertain the terms on which it may be bought.

Social Dance.—A grand social dance will be given at the Hyatt house on Monday evening next, under the auspices of the 13th regiment at home on furlough. Their tournament we believe expires on the 23rd, and of course this will be the last opportunity many of their friends will have of meeting them. Most of the higher officers are active or honorary managers, and it bids fair to be one of the largest and best social gatherings of the season. A general invitation is extended.

Month's Trial Free

Breathe Hyomel Three or Four Times Daily and Be Cured of Catarrh. The People's Drug Co. and King's Pharmacy, two of the most reliable business firms in Janesville, have seen many instances of the remarkable power of Hyomel to cure catarrh of the nose and other disorders of the respiratory organs.

Results in this treatment have given them so much confidence in Hyomel that they will give a month's trial with the positive understanding that if at the end of that time a cure is not effected or enough relief gained to warrant a continued use of the treatment for a while longer, the money will be refunded.

Hyomel is the only treatment for catarrh that has ever been sold under a "no cure, no pay" plan, and the only one where a month's trial treatment is free unless it cures. Hyomel is not a pill or liquid. Just breathe it through the nasal inhaler that comes with every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first day's use. Breathe in this way, the health-giving Hyomel penetrates to the minutest air cells of the lungs, and drives catarrhal germs and poisons from the system.

The complete outfit costs but $1, and extra bottles of Hyomel may be obtained for 50c. Remember that if Hyomel does not cure you after a month's trial either the People's Drug Co. or King's Pharmacy will refund your money and the treatment will be absolutely free.

Chicago. If successful it will connect that body with the alleged conspiracy to put employees out of business unless they grant the union demands. All criminal acts will, it is claimed, render every member of a labor union responsible.

To bring influences adverse to the anti-injunction bill now pending before the House Judiciary committee friends of the National Manufacturers' association have organized a systematic opposition which will, with delays already indulged by the committee, prevent a report upon the measure until the last days of the session. Labor representatives do not expect any action on the bill this session.

The Conch Drivers' union of Paterson, N. J., has prepared a schedule for presentation to the undertakers and livermen. The men ask that the following rates be paid after April 1: $12 a week, 75 cents for drivers from 6 to 10 a. m., and 25 cents an hour after 10 o'clock; 75 cents for city drivers at funerals; $1.25 for country drivers.

On the sworn statement of officials of the Dearborn Duster company that the Chicago Federation of Labor was engaged in assisting strikers in unlawful acts of intimidation and violence Judge Jesse Eldred recently issued an injunction against the federation. President William G. Sharpe and Secretary Edward H. Nockels, are especially named as defendants, together with a host of girl and men strikers belonging to the Feather Duster Makers' union. The attempt of the company to connect the Federation of Labor with the acts complained of is the first of its kind in

TOBACCO LETTER FOR THE GROWERS

What Is Doing in the Leaf Market This Week—Weather Still Adverse to Packing.

Deliveries of the new crop are coming in very slow, growers have been handicapped somewhat by the snow storm that prevailed in the early part of the week, but up to the present time not much of the new crop has yet been delivered to the buyers in this city. Five of the local warehouses are now running, employing about half the usual number of hands. The new crops thus far delivered in this city have been all in first class shape. The buyers are anxious to get the crops in now as the work will drag along into hot weather if they do not get started soon. It is likely that dealers who do not open up within the next two weeks will not open their warehouses this season.

WISCONSIN
The market is still low. There is a certain amount of riding, but the large operators are showing little interest. But little of the crop is yet stripped and buyers, having had but little opportunity to examine the tobacco, are led to take a cautious attitude by the reports of a large percentage of damage running through the crop. Another season of easing weather has given an opportunity for the taking down of tobacco, though the leaf has not really reached a prime condition, and owing to the large percentage of shed burn which renders it less sensitive to atmospheric conditions, there is considerable difficulty about casing. Prices range from 5 to 7-12 cents for good leaf. Shipments out of storage for the week reached 600 cases.

NEW ENGLAND
All reports go to indicate that the damage to the crop has been extensive and it is rare for buyers on every contracts to give prices stipulated when the tobacco was in the fields. Even the best tobacco is fetching low prices and the outlook for those who hold the poorer crops is discouraging. A large number of growers have stated their intentions of holding and assorting their crops themselves, on the understanding they will be paid according to grades.

NEW YORK
Beyond a few small sales there has been no movement in the new crop. The condition of the roads renders riding difficult, and the weather is unfavorable for taking the crop from the sheds. Many of the growers have not begun sorting, hoping to sell in the bundle, but there are others who believe that later on when the roads improve those who have their crops properly sorted, cased or in bulk, will be able to command better prices.

FARMERS MEAN TO FIGHT TRUST

Claim They Are Treated Unfairly by the Elevator Men.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 17.—Farmers in Fond du Lac county in the vicinity of Mayville are up in arms at what they term the elevator trust, and have organized an independent stock and grain company for the purpose of erecting an elevator at Mayville, so that they may secure a fair market price for their produce. Former Congressman Sauerherberg has been selected as general manager of the new company. Similar action is likely to be taken by farmers in many other localities, Mr. Sauerherberg says.

Danderine
GREW THIS HAIR
And we can PROVE IT.
If you want your hair to grow THICK and LONG
DANDERINE
is the remedy you will be obliged to use.
We have a standing order to water 1,000 that it is the only
HAIR TONIC
on the market today that will positively stop and cure falling hair and make
HAIR GROW
Average growth 1 1/2 in. per month for twenty consecutive months.
By permission we herewith reproduce photograph of Miss Sarah MacComb, a lady who has lived in Chicago all her life and is well known in the city, especially on the South Side. Her hair before she commenced the use of Danderine would not reach below her waist, while now it touches the floor when she stands erect. This remarkable growth is the result of using Danderine, the greatest of all hair and scalp tonics, regularly as a dressing.

It Gave Her Hair New Life
and will do the same for you if you give it a fair trial. Danderine puts new life and vigor in both the hair and scalp. It makes the hair fluffy, silky, and there seems to be no limit to the growth it will produce. There is no other that can be compared to it, as it is founded on new ideas altogether.

SHE IS WILLING TO SWEAR TO IT.
By request of Miss MacComb we reproduce the following letters:
EXHIBITION DANDERINE CO., Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:—I am writing to you many inquiries regarding the hair tonic, that I am sending you the letter for the benefit of the public that you may reproduce it, and I will send you a bottle of Danderine for twenty consecutive months and the amount of growth of my hair was one and one-fourth inches per month, making a total of twenty-five inches in twenty months. You are all very welcome to use this letter under my name, and by so doing will save me the trouble of answering the large number of inquiries which I am receiving daily. Sincerely,
SARAH MACCOMB
1133 SARAH MACCOMB,
6036 Forrestville Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FREE
To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this advertisement to the Danderine Company, 1133 Sarah MacComb, with their name and address and ten cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

SOTHERN IN THE DRESSING ROOM

TALKS ON THE ENDOWED THEATRE OF THE FUTURE.

BELIEVES IN THE PROJECT

Does Not Agree with Mr. Carnegie— Talks Most Interestingly on the Shakespearean Drama.

Few who witnessed last night's production of "The Proud Prince" were fortunate enough to peep behind the scenes and meet Sothern, the student, and hear him talk even more interestingly on the Shakespearean drama than he did in his character of King Robert of Sicily before the audience. It was more of a treat to meet the man and talk with him than to see the actor and hear him read the lines of his difficult part. Sothern, the actor, is a master of his profession but Sothern, the student and Shakespearean scholar, is even greater.

In the Dressing Room
An ordinary stage dressing room is not a thing of beauty. It is usually small and crowded and cluttered up with make-up boxes, properties and clothes, with just a space left for mirror and make-up table. It is smoky and has a dirty look to the layman's eyes and the glamour of the calcium light does not seem to enter the narrow portals. But Mr. Sothern's room was different. It was small; it was cluttered up, but the cluttering was of that orderly kind that one stops to wonder where all the articles laid with precision and order can possibly have come from. Four large trunks stood about the walls. On one a clean towel was laid and upon this stood a half dozen wigs on blocks ready for use. In a large easy chair, over which a blanket had been thrown, sat Mr. Sothern. Before him was the dressing table. In daylight it is a plain board shelf, but quick hands have transformed it. Clean papers covered all dirt and grime and over these was laid a dainty white cover. The mirror, a dusky little piece of glass that has reflected many a face was bordered by electric bulbs that made the room as light as day. Spread beneath it were the mysteries of the art—rouge, creams, pencils, make-up putty, and all the other important items were in regular order. Plined to the side of the mirror were the moustaches and beards of the Jester, Diogenes.

Sothern the Man
Seated in the arm-chair Mr. Sothern, the man, talked of Mr. Sothern, the actor's hopes and thoughts of the future. Before him lay a telegram from the New York Herald asking his views on a statement by Andrew Carnegie regarding the endowment of theatres and that gentleman's adverse opinion on this subject. Mr. Sothern was ready to prepare for his evening's role when the telegram was handed him and as he stated his ideas on the subject his dresser, a sable colored man, completed the transformation from the every-day citizen of the twentieth century into the King Robert of the thirteenth century.

His Opinion
"An endowed theatre such as the Comedie Francaise in America is the dream of all actors," said Mr. Sothern. "I do not mean to criticize Mr. Carnegie for his adverse opinion, as he is a man of thought but I think that he has failed to appreciate the real value of the stage as an educational element. In America there was such a theatre where the best plays could be produced it would be a stimulus to actors and managers to revive the dramas of Shakespeare and would be an education for theatre-goers. Personally, I would be glad to see an endowed theatre on the lines of the Comedie Francaise established in this country. Among the actors of today the project has long been discussed. Mr. Mansfield has spoken seriously of it and others have thought deeply on the subject. Such a theatre would be ideal. It would mean much to both public and stage."

Not for One Man
"However I do not believe it should be the work of one man. I would prefer to see it endowed by the actors as their monument to posterity. It cannot be accomplished by the setting aside of a certain sum of money and saying this is to endow a national theatre. It must be the result of thought and care. It cannot be accomplished in a day or a year, but must be the gradual growth of time. It would mean that in one theatre, if in no other, the best plays of the past and present would be presented to the public in the best possible manner. It would educate the theatre-goers for the best stage could produce and would stimulate the actors to renewed efforts to succeed in their particular lines."

The Shakespearean Drama
"I, myself, am a lover of the Shakespearean drama. I look forward with pleasure to my association with Miss Marlowe next season, and the revival of the plays of the Bard of Avon. Shakespeare is an educational feature that must not be overlooked. Many times when I have played Hamlet, and have been in the vicinity of large schools, the majority of my audiences have been composed of students of these plays and I have enjoyed doing my best before them. Shakespeare properly staged and with the best talent in the title roles is an educational feature. I would even say that the minor actors who essay Shakespearean parts are doing more for the uplifting of the public than is at first realized."

Irving's Advice
"I look back with pleasure to my younger days when I went to hear Irving in his first nights and listened to the great actor declaim the lines I had studied. Mr. Irving once gave me a bit of advice, in fact he gives it to all actors and students of Shakespeare. Before going to a production of the Bard's plays read the play over thoroughly and as it progresses think how you would have acted just that particular part. Had we an endowed theatre in America these plays could be produced as they should be and both the actors and the audience would be benefited. Shakespeare is immortal and the public could be educated up to appreciating his wonderful insight into the future and the stage uplifted. Even though we have no Booth or Keane today to portray the principal parts still an endowed theatre would tend to develop actors who would in a way take their places."

His Hopes
Mr. Sothern has one of those pleasing personalities that cannot be resisted. His voice is sweet and clear and he talks in a way that impresses his hearer. A thorough student of Shakespeare he looks forward with pleasure to his work in this direction next season. In appearance he is not unlike his presentation of King Robert. His features are regular and his figure slim but well proportioned. His hair is long and wavy and is brushed back away from his high forehead. He is precise in his movements but not studied and has an easy grace of both speech and manner. On subjects he has no interest in he cannot talk. On the drama of Shakespeare he is an interesting speaker. Unlike the majority of stage people he thinks more of his art and its success than of the notoriety. He has not a fund of stories to furnish an interviewer with but when approached from a student's standpoint he is brilliant.

Patron Saint's Memory Is as Green as the Emblem of the Isle of the Shamrock.

Mother earth did not join with her Irish sons and daughters in the "wearing of the green" on this St. Patrick's day, but will don even heavier robes of white than she is now wearing. If the storm predictions of today come true, despite this the shamrock reigned supreme and the day was generally observed by religious services this morning and a banquet to be held this evening.

LATE TRAINS VEX THE JURY

MORNING SESSION UNAVOIDABLY DISPENSED WITH.

YARDMASTER DAVID GRIFFIN

And Schuyler Barrett Were Summoned This Afternoon—Have New Investigations Started?

Late trains again interfered with the progress of the grand jury's investigations this morning and the session was not called until one o'clock this afternoon. Dave Griffin, yardmaster for the North-Western, and Schuyler Barrett, a section man employed by the same road, were summoned before the august body—each for a few moments—and both remembering their oaths, presented a sphinx-like silence upon being asked by the room.

Unfathomable Mystery
Whether or not some new trial was opened up today can only be surmised. Both witnesses before being called before the jury expressed themselves at a loss to understand or conjecture what was wanted of them.

The Witness Fees
The jury receive $1.50 for their services whether it is necessary for them to remain only a few moments or a whole day. Some of them think, however, that in either event the money is well earned.

For a long time the price of beef in Janesville was 15c and 18c a pound, and one got discouraged trying to get a tender steak. CHAPTER IV.

MEANWHILE Charlie had brought the Bertha Miller up to within halting distance of the bark and had have her to. Kitchell ordered Wilbur to return to the schooner and bring over a couple of axes.

"We'll have to knock holes all through the house and break in the skylights and let the gas escape before we can do anything. Take the kid over and give him whisky. Then come along back and bear a hand."

Wilbur had considerable difficulty in getting into the dory from the deck of the plunging derelict with his dazed and almost helpless charge. Even as he slid down the rope into the little boat and helped the girl to follow he was aware of two dull, brownish green shadows moving just beneath the water's surface not ten feet away, and knew that he was being stealthily watched. The Chinamen at the oars of the dory, with that extraordinary absence of curiosity which is the mark of the race, did not glance a second time at the survivor of the Lady Letty's misadventure. To them it was evident she was but a forlorn hand. However, Wilbur examined her with extraordinary interest as she sat in the stern sheets, sullen, half defiant, half bewildered and bereft of speech.

She was not pretty—she was too tall for that—quite as tall as Wilbur himself, and her skeleton was too massive. Her face was red, and the glint of blue ice was in her eyes. Her eyelashes and eyebrows, as well as the almost imperceptible down that edged her cheek when she turned against the light, were blond almost to whiteness. What beauty she had was of the line, hardy Norse type. Her hands were red and hard, and even beneath the coarse sleeve of the oldskin coat one could infer that the biceps and deltoids were large and powerful. She was coarse fibered, no doubt, mentally as well as physically, but her coarseness, so Wilbur guessed, would prove to be the coarseness of a primitive rather than of a degenerate character.

One thing he saw clearly during the few moments of the dory's trip between bark and schooner—the fact that his charge was a woman must be kept from Captain Kitchell. Wilbur knew his man by now. It could be done. Kitchell and he would take the Lady Letty into the nearest port as soon as possible. The deception would have to be maintained only for a day or two.

He left the girl on board the schooner and returned to the derelict with the axes. He found Kitchell on the house, just returned from a hasty survey of the prize.

"She's a daisy," vociferated the captain as Wilbur came aboard. "I've been havin' a look round. She's brand new. See the date on the capst'n's head? Christiana is her hullin' port—built there. But it's her papers I'm after. Then we'll know where we're at. How's the kid?"

"She's all right," answered Wilbur before he could collect his thoughts. But the captain thought he had reference to the Bertha.

"I mean the kid we found in the wheel box. He doesn't count in our salvage. The bark's been abandoned as plain as paint. If I thought he stood in our way," and Kitchell's jaw grew salient, "I'd shut him in the cabin with the old man a spell till he'd copped off. Now, then, son, first thing to do is to chop vents in this yere house."

"Hold up! We can do better than that," said Wilbur, restraining Kitchell's fury of impatience. "Slide the big skylight off. It's loose already."

A couple of the schooner's hands were ordered aboard the Lady Letty and the skylight removed. At first the pour of gas was terrific, but by degrees it abated, and at the end of half an hour Kitchell could keep back no longer.

"Come on!" he cried, catching up an ax. "Rot the difference!" All the plundering instincts of the man were aroused and clamoring. He had become a very wolf within scent of its prey, a veritable hyena nuzzling about its carrion.

"Lord!" he gasped. "To think that everything we see, everything we find, is ours!"

Wilbur himself was not far behind him in eagerness. Somewhere deep down in the heart of every Anglo-Saxon lies the predatory instinct of his viking ancestors, an instinct that a thousand years of respectability and taxpaying have not quite succeeded in eliminating.

A flight of six steps, brass bound and bearing the double L of the bark's monogram, led them down into a sort of vestibule. From the vestibule a door opened directly into the main cabin. They entered.

The cabin was some twenty feet long and unusually spacious. Fresh from his recollection of the grime and reek of the schooner, it struck Wilbur as particularly dainty. It was painted white, with stripes of blue, gold and pea green. On either side three doors opened off into staterooms and private cabins, and with each roll of the derelict these doors banged like an irregular discharge of revolvers. In the center was the dining table, covered with a red cloth very much awry. On each side of the table were four armchairs screwed to the deck, one somewhat larger at the head. Overhead in swinging racks were glasses and decanters of whisky, and some kind of white liver. But for one feature the sight of the Letty's cabin was charming. However, on the floor by the sliding door in the forward bulkhead lay a body, face upward.

The body was that of a middle aged, fine looking man, his head covered with the fur, ear lapped cap that Norwegians affect even in the tropics. The eyes were wide open, the face discolored. In the last gasp of suffocation the set of false teeth had been forced halfway out of his mouth, distorting the countenance with a hideous simian grin. Instantly Kitchell's eye was caught by the glint of the gold in which these teeth were set.

"Here's about $100 to begin with!" he exclaimed, and, picking up the teeth, dropped them into his pocket with a wink at Wilbur. The body of the dead captain was passed up through the skylight and laid out on the deck, and Wilbur and Kitchell turned their attention to what had been his stateroom.

The captain's room was the largest one of the six staterooms opening from the main cabin.

"Here we are!" exclaimed Kitchell as he and Wilbur entered. "The old man's room, and no mistake."

Besides the bunk, the stateroom was fitted up with a lounge of red plush screwed to the bulkhead. A roll of charts leaned in one corner; an alarm clock, stopped at 1:15, stood on a shelf in the company of some dozen paper covered novels and a drinking glass full of cigars. Over the lounge, however, was the rack of instruments, sextant, barometer, chronometer, glass and the like, securely screwed down, while against the wall, in front of a swivel leather chair that was frozen to the deck, was the locked secretary.

"Look at 'em; just look at 'em, will you?" said Kitchell, running his fingers lovingly over the polished brass of the instruments. "There's a thousand dollars of stuff right here. The chronometer's worth five hundred alone. Bennett & Sons' own make." He turned to the secretary.

"Now!" he exclaimed, with a long breath.

What followed thrilled Wilbur with alternate excitement, curiosity and a vivid sense of desecration and sacrilege. For the life of him he could not make the thing seem right or legal in his eyes, and yet he had neither the wish nor the power to stay his hand or interfere with what Kitchell was doing.

The captain put the blade of the ax in the chink of the secretary's door and wrenched it free. It opened down to form a sort of desk and disclosed an array of cubbyholes and two small doors, both locked. These latter Kitchell smashed in with the ax head. Then he seated himself in the swivel chair and began to rifle their contents systematically, Wilbur leaning over his shoulder.

The hunt from the coal below them was almost unbearable. In the cabin the six doors kept up a continuous ear shocking fusillade, as though half a dozen men were fighting with revolvers. From without, down the open skylight, came the singsong talk of the Chinamen and the wash and ripple of the two vessels, now side by side. The air, foul beyond expression, tasted of brass. Their heads swam and ached to bursting; but, absorbed in their work, they had no thought of the lapse of time nor the discomfort of their surroundings. Twice during the examination of the bark's papers Kitchell sent Wilbur out into the cabin for the whisky decanter in the swinging racks.

"Here's the charter papers," said Kitchell, unfolding and spreading them out one by one, "and here's the clearing papers from Blyth in England. This yere's the insurance, and here, this is—not that, nothing! but the articles for the crew; no use to us."

In a separate envelope, carefully sealed and bound, they came upon the captain's private papers. A marriage certificate setting forth the union between Eliott Sternerson of Frubolmen, Norway, and Sarah Moran of some seaport town (the name was unrecognizable) of the north of England. Next came a birth certificate of a daughter named Moran, dated twenty-two years back, and a bill of sale of the bark Lady Letty whereby a two-thirds interest was conveyed from the previous owner, a shipbuilding firm of Christiansburg, to Captain Eliott Sternerson.

"The old man was his devil boss," commented Kitchell. "Hello!" he remarked. "Look here." A yellowed photograph was in his hand, the picture of a stout, fair haired woman of about forty, wearing enormous pendant earrings in the style of the early sixties. Below was written: "S. Moran Sternerson, ob. 1867."

"Old woman copped off," said Kitchell. "So much the better for us. No heirs to put in their gab, an'—hold hard, steady all—here's the will, a'help me."

The only items of importance in the will were the confirmation of the wife's death and the expressly stated bequest of "the bark known as and sailing under the name of the Lady Letty to my only and beloved daughter, Moran."

"Well," said Wilbur. The captain sucked his mustache furiously, striking the desk with his fist: "The bark's ours!" There was a certain ring of defiance in his voice. "Hang the will! I ain't no cocksure about the law, but I'll make sure."

"As how?" said Wilbur. Kitchell slung the will out of the open port into the sea. "That's how," he remarked. "I'm the heir. I found the bark. Mine she is, an' mine she stays—yours an' mine, that is."

But Wilbur had not even the time to thoroughly enjoy the satisfaction that the captain's words conveyed before an idea suddenly presented itself to him. The girl he had found on board of the bark, the ruddy, fair haired girl of the fine and hardy Norse type—that was the daughter, of course; that was "Moran." Instantly the situation adjusted itself in his imagination—the two inseparables, father and daughter, sailors both, their lives passed together on shipboard, and the Lady Letty their dream, their ambition, a vessel that at last they could call their own.

WORTH A THOUGHT.

This Statement Will Interest Scores of Janesville Readers.

The facts given below are worth a personal by all who are anxious about their physical condition or are similarly situated to this resident of Beloit. It is a local occurrence and can be thoroughly investigated. Mr. J. E. Flint, of 870 Bluff street, Beloit, Miller at the Biograph Mrs. Co., says: "I had pain in my back for about two years. Although I was not laid up and unable to work, still the dull tired aching while at work was disagreeable and inconvenient. Standing and walking about aggravated it, or if I sat in one position any length of time my back became very stiff. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills in one of our papers and as they were especially recommended for such complaints I got a box. They soon took the pain and soreness out of my back and kidneys. They reached the spot at once."

Plenty more proof like this from Janesville people. Call at the Peoples' Drug store and ask what their customers report.

MAD TRAINER LEAVES LION'S CAGE DOOR OPEN

Insane Over Religion, He Declares He Is Imbued With Power to Heal
Ills of Man and Beast.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 17.—Alfred J. F. Perrino, a lion tamer, has gone insane and is in the county jail in this city awaiting an agent from the state asylum at Chattahoochee to come for him. Perrino has been giving a side show with his three huge lions on West Bay street. After giving one of his performances, he emerged from the cage and left the door open, saying, "They will not come out, as God is looking after them."

Perrino then perched himself on a box and said he could restore sight to the blind and cure any disease by his magnetic power.

Bystanders closed the cage door and kept the lions from escaping.

The investigating committee decided that Perrino had gone insane over religion. He tried to tell the committee where the Bible gave him power over beasts and humans.

Women's Wash Cotton Shirt Waists

The Knickerbocker....

The cut represents one of our $1.50 white mercerized waists.

The new seasons first showing of these is certainly fine and the prices very modest. We have sold the Knickerbocker Waist for several years past and know that they are right as regards fit, style and workmanship. They are in a class by themselves. A little ahead of any other waist in the market. We mention a few numbers taken at random from our immense collection.

At $1.00, fine percale, white, with small black figures, black sateen, with pleated front and back, fine tucks front and back, just the thing for common wear.

At $1.25, fine madras with small colored and black figures, standing color, pique trimming.

At $2.00, waist of fine black batiste is a popular number.

One at $2.50 is made of Oxford Gray, fine cotton, mercerized material, tucking front and back with a tiny black and white checked piping, is a sensible garment.

At $2.25, small black fancy cotton pongee, 9 buttons in front, three in a cluster.

At $2.50, a fine cotton pongee, navy with small white dots, six white pearl buttons in front.

At $2.75, heavy all linen, white, nine small self-shank pearl buttons.

At $1.25, fine sheer muslin waist, white, in small colored blocked pattern, very dainty.

At $1.00 and $1.50, fine sheer white muslin with beautiful Mexican drawn yoke. Exceptional value.

Another $3.00 waist, is a fine sheer brocaded linen, color with red, blue or green figures. A dressy waist.

At $2.25 and $2.75, we have the pure linen white waists in fine qualities, made rather plain. We consider these extra good.

At $1.00 to $6.00, we show a very large assortment in white cotton mercerized materials. Some heavy for spring wear, others of light materials. We call particular attention to these mercerized waists

At $6.00 and 8.00 we show beautiful, heavy, all-linen, white waists, with elaborate Mexican drawn work fronts, cuffs and collar tabs.

The waists this year are made with the standing collars of the same material with trimming of pique and embroidery. We have a few waists displayed in our window. It is hard for one to get away from the line of waists shown by this store.
